

Dangerous Plants

Plants That Can Harm Your Pets...

We all love plants! All that Oxygen they add to our environment. But sadly, many plants that are beautiful are also poisonous to our pets! If you love one of these plants and you have pets, you might want to rethink its location! Here are some flowers and plants that are commonly found in a home that can be poisonous to your pets:

Hyacinth Bulbs

Mistletoe Berries

Poinsettia

Hydrangea

Oleander

Rhododendrons

Lily of the Valley

Philodendron

Wisteria Seeds

Yew

Azalea

Caladium

Chinaberry Tree

Daffodil Bulbs

Dieffenbachia

Elephant Ear

English Ivy

Foxglove

Oleander

Azalea

Foxglove

Yew

Poinsettia

Don't forget other household items can be toxins as well. String and yarn are also deadly if swallowed.

An antifreeze puddle left in a garage, driveway or street is very tasty to cats and that is why it is the leading poison and killer of cats.

Also toxic to cats are common household cleaning fluids, plant and landscaping fertilizers, paints and lacquers and rodent killing poisons and medications, to name a few. Keep all containers tightly sealed and away from animals and children! KEEP CATS INDOORS – the dangers outside are too numerous to mention all of them.
